

F. Major Benefits from Direct Legal Representation of Individuals

##

Please use this section to report outcomes achieved for clients on all cases closed during the fiscal year. You may report up to three outcomes achieved per case, a main outcome and two additional ones. For example: One case may include a divorce as a main outcome benefit achieved and custody and support as ancillary outcomes. If three people benefited from the divorce or other main outcome and the same number benefited from the ancillary outcomes, then you may list the "number of persons benefited" accordingly. The number of people benefited per case will only be listed once on the "cases closed" table to avoid overcounting.

If the outcome involves money obtained or avoided, or housing issues, then use the number in the household in determining # of persons benefited. For any other case, it is up to the casehandler's conservative judgment to determine how many persons were positively benefited by the outcome of the case.

Please see two additional questions at bottom of form.
